

Being With The Lord In All Seasons

Dear sisters in the Lord!

We just wanted to send a quick word of encouragement. Sometimes, like the weather and seasons, our hearts can go through many seasons and be found having different climates or conditions. Because we love Jesus so much, we desire that our hearts would always be one hundred percent Son-shine, with no clouds of fear or unbelief. Yet we all know that this simply is not so. The very process of Christ being formed in us brings with it many different phases and seasons that all work together for Christ to grow. Through all of this we must be re-assured that we are held in Christ through all the seasons of our hearts. His “holding power” in resurrection oneness cannot be shaken by the storms of earth life. And as our hearts work through these seasons we can know that the wind of the Holy Spirit is gently wooing and drawing us to more deeply know the real Jesus. He will comfort and warm us as He lifts up the beauty of the Lord. Our hearts will turn and melt in the beauty of Christ, the One we love. God controls the weather, bringing spring after winter. And the unveiled Christ alone has the power to melt away the fears and concerns that cover over our hearts at times.

There is no reason to fear no matter what the season! God is holding you in His Son, safe and secure and accepted in Christ. The Holy Spirit is faithful to breath into your heart the true knowing of the Christ you long for. The Lord Himself will bring those weather changes that you may desperately need, and He will do so in His tender love and incredible grace.

We love you so much and thank God for each of you!

Yours together in Him
